KPC students participate in T-200 Photography Competition

Photography students from Kenai Peninsula College participated in the 2009 Tustumena-200 KPC Photography Competition sponsored by the Tustumena 200 Sled Dog Association. Participating students are enrolled in the Associate of Applied Science in Digital Art degree program, a two-year degree with a concentration in digital photography. The degree is offered only at Kenai Peninsula College.

According to Assistant Professor of Photography and Art, Jayne Jones, “The students captured the excitement and the quiet moments of the Tustumena 200 Races this year.”

An opening reception for the students’ photography will be held on Thursday, March 5 from 4:30 to 6 p.m. at Coffee Roasters in the Red Diamond Mall on K-Beach Road in Soldotna. The show will be on display through Thursday, March 26.

Professor Charles Mason, UAF photojournalist and journalism department chair, served as the guest juror. He reviewed the work online and recorded the cyberspace jury process for the students’ continued learning. There will be cash prizes awarded at an awards ceremony beginning at 5:30 p.m. at the opening reception.

More information about the race and the winners can be found at:
